Dislike:

Upgrading to Lightroom 5.2 makes me feel three year behind but I really like what I see. I especially like the different preview views (Smart previews seem to be a huge speed/quality boost for the person using the camera) and I look forward to seeing more features in the future. What I would like to see is if there is a spot to add more network web resources to your library (could be a full URL, a tag, or just adding your web-image feed). The Mac client is great, but still nice to have an app on iOS and Windows. I have had to downgrade to light room 5.2 as it performance was not good after updating to new version. what i found is that light room after updating slow down performance and smallest images are not normal size. Is there a way to get the Lightroom side panel back? I cannot figure out how to do this and I think this is really killing me. It is crazy how they removed all of this and are now just saying it is integrated into Photoshop! The fact that they removed the ability to focus on individual layers (panels) was a big loss in my book. But I guess that is why So many people use Photoshop Elements. Still, it would be nice to see the maintained panels that are included in the Editor version. That would allow them to keep the panels and the panels options available for inclusion in the Solarized app. If they did that, I think it would quell some of the complaints about the fact that the panels are now gone in Elements. Why are the Lightroom app and the touch versions called the same thing? Lightroom 5 is not the same as lightroom 5 touch. I would expect to name them something, like Lightroom 5 Editor and Touch 5.2. They are in the same application and the diffrences between them are not that obvious. They have the same user interface, but Lightroom

5 Editor has the regular UI, whereas Word Touch 5.2 has the touch screen UI.

Photoshop Scripting brings the power of JavaScript to Photoshop, allowing you to create sophisticated macros and automation scripts that use the scripting language to extend the capabilities of Photoshop Applications. You can automate every step of a Photoshop User's workflow, including adjusting the exposure, contrast, hue, saturation and brightness, combining images into layers, creating effects, and sharpening and cropping images. The next release of Photoshop will include a new link between the 3D and 2D worlds of the CS family, with CS6 and CS6 Extended adding 2D to 3D merging technology that will allow you to import and process 2D masking or 3D texture maps in Photoshop. Photoshop on the Mac will use this new technology to bring 3D content into the workspace. The next release of Photoshop will also bring new high-performance GPU APIs to improve the user interface and performance of Photoshop products. Substance Designer will be the first product to ship with this new feature, but Photoshop will adopt it closely as it continues to evolve. It is believed that Substance will allow you to render images on the GPU as well as work in traditional Photoshop layers and with the Content-Aware technologies. This will accelerate the preparation and edit process once in Photoshop and give you a natural entry point into Photoshop. Besides the tethered updates included in Photoshop CC, one other feature that is part of the whole suite of updates is the Image Data Compression (IPTC) Service which is now enabled regardless of which version of Photoshop you are. ACR includes additional tools that allow you to work with IPTC tags so that non-photographer non-specialists can easily deliver bulleted lists of information about their photos.

Many people have already discovered that the PDF, DOC, XLS, PPT, ZIP and other extensions all work on your iPhone or other mobile device. Adobe just added an extension for the Elements mobile app, including a more streamlined, user-friendly interface. And when you launch your photo or design on other apps, such as Google Photos, Facebook, Pinterest and Instagram, you'll see the images open inside the original app. In Elements, the dashboard provides a central, one-stop shop for creating slideshows, apps and web pages. With the new dashboard, you can see all your photos, videos and links, plus build a slideshow using the same images as a web page. Meanwhile, Adobe has expanded its Sensei AI offering with new content discovery and optimization features, including automatic recognition of subject characteristics and alphanumeric text, based on the new Sign Language recognition software announced by Adobe today at the MAX event. Adobe Sensei can also find and remove unwanted objects, fix photos with blurred or out-of-focus portions, and get you the most relevant images and videos in front of you. Open up the Photographers panel menu and choose "After Effects Animation Enhancements" to check out new additions in lighting-tight visuals and render quality in After Effects you can't find elsewhere. Adobe Sensei AI was once again named a technology of the year winner for 2019 by CNET in recognition of its innovations in voice recognition, image recognition, and recognition of content. The recognition technology covers all major desktop and web applications, including Photoshop, Illustrator, InDesign, Office, and Edge browsers, and other Adobe applications. Think of this as layers on top of Photoshop.
